POLITICAL CAR CASH FOR CG?

Nobody knows what is going on in Washington DC, or what is about to go on, like the high-end Washington DC prostitutes, known as Escorts. There are over 3000 of them in the immediate DC area that specialize in Congressman and lobbyists. Since 2008, an ad hoc group of investigators, journalists and bloggers have set out to contact every one of them (or at least as many as possible) to get their story on the real Washington corruption program.

A segment of the car funding scam documentary: The Car and The Senator (<http://www.carandthesenatormovie.com>) features interviews with escorts who were hired by lobbyists and Congress people to provide favors in exchange for TARP and DOE Car funding.

Senior politicians run from meeting to meeting relaying on tip sheets from barely pubescent, low-cost interns and aids to tell them what is going on. Washington Escorts take the time to study their prey and keep extensive databases on each of the interests, projects, bills and activities of each Congressman they provide sex service to, or may, in the future.

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=E72nO5AKAHo>

A number of "influencers" or lobby firms keep escort services on an annual retainer, receiving monthly bills from "Debbie's Office Services" and other non-descript credit card billing names. Lobby groups sent out over 5 Escorts per day at the height of the TARP and DOE Car funding in support of the "winners".

It is suspected that notorious blogger and Tweeter Jofi Joseph was one such blogger. He, and many bloggers, may have acquired escort-user web persona's in order to meet and interview Escorts in Washington, DC, New York and Chicago for a very deep investigation of the dirty side of politics.

"Exclusive: White House Official Fired for Tweeting Under Fake Name

by Josh Rogin Oct 22, 2013 8:27 PM EDT

Jofi Joseph, an official in the National Security Staff at the White House, was fired last week after being caught as the tweeter behind @natsecwonk, a feed that's been leaking internal information since 2011. Josh Rogin reports.

A White House national security official was fired last week after being caught as the mystery Tweeter who has been tormenting the foreign policy community with insulting comments and revealing internal Obama administration information for over two years.

Jofi Joseph, a director in the non-proliferation section of the National Security Staff at the White House, has been surreptitiously tweeting under the moniker @natsecwonk, a Twitter feed famous inside Washington policy circles since it began in February, 2011 until it was shut down last week. Two administration officials confirmed that the mystery tweeter was Joseph, who has also worked at the State Department and on Capitol Hill for Senators Bob Casey (D-PA) and Joe Biden. Until recently, he was part of the administration's team working on negotiations with Iran.

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=vsaFjaZuYQA>

During his time tweeting under the @natsecwonk name, Joseph openly criticized the policies of his White House bosses and often insulted their intellect and appearance. At different times, he insulted or criticized several top White House and State Department officials, including former National Security Advisor Tom Donilon, Deputy National Security Advisor Ben Rhodes, Secretary of State John Kerry, and many many others.

The Daily Beast saved a long record of @natsecwonk's tweets prior to the shutting down of his Twitter feed.

"I'm a fan of Obama, but his continuing reliance and dependence upon a vacuous cipher like Valerie Jarrett concerns me," he once tweeted.

"Was Huma Abedin wearing beer goggles the night she met Anthony Wiener? Almost as bad a pairing as Samantha Powers and Cass Sunstein", he tweeted on another occasion, insulting a top Clinton aide, a then Congressman, and two White House senior officials in one tweet.

The Daily Beast Senior Correspondent Josh Rogin joins 'Good Morning America' and 'Today' to discuss @natsecwonk.

Joseph's snark was not confined to his Obama administration colleagues. He also took aim at senior Republican figures and lowly GOP Hill staffers.

"So when will someone do us the favor of getting rid of Sarah Palin and the rest of her white trash family? What utter useless garbage", he tweeted last October.

During the 2012 Presidential campaign, he lashed out at conservative journalists and members of the presidential campaign staff of Mitt Romney

"@MiekeEoyang Come on, I expected better of you. @jrubinblogger is CRAZY unhinged while @noonarjo is an overweight paid Romney shill," he tweeted, referring to the Washington Post's conservative blogger Jen Rubin and Romney campaign national security staffer John Noonan.

For many in the foreign policy community reacting Tuesday night, the revelation that Joseph was the mystery tweeter @natsecwonk was a shock because Joseph was well known among policy wonks and his wife, Carolyn Leddy, is a well-respected professional staffer on the Republican side of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

But inside the administration, there was little sympathy for the man who they feel had betrayed their confidence while taunting them all the while.

"My friends call me Batman," he once tweeted.

A White House spokesman confirmed that Joseph no longer works there but declined further comment."

But there is more to this...

Jofi Joseph Revelations

Joseph and a number of bloggers and investigators used Twitter Handles such as @DCHobby, @DChobbyists, @Plusurehobby, etc... to give escorts comfort that they were cool to talk to. In Escort parlance, a "hobbyists" is someone who uses prostitutes on a regular basis and knows all of the "rules". In DC, Every member of Congress is considered a "Hobbyist". Many of the front office interns of Congress are Escorts for them at night as can be seen from the last 6 years of news stories in search using the terms: "Congress, intern, senator, etc." These blogger spies have the scoop, collected over the last 4 to 5 years, from these escorts on EVERY member of Congress. You wonder why that typist yelled out on the floor of Congress the night of the Debt Limit vote; The "serving two masters" comment she made may have had more to do with her disgust with all of her bosses trotting in Escorts around her than anything else.

It may not matter if Jofi Joseph had sex with some of the girls or not if he got them to spill their stories on tape and roll over on corruption schemes in DC. Do we condemn him for indiscretions (which he may not have even had if he was truly investigating corruption) but acclaim him for disclosing some of the biggest indiscretions in Washington?

Apparently a number of these escorts have been spilling the beans on DOE Staff, Car company executives and "bundlers" that helped to grease the pole to run the funding flag up to certain car companies and their investors.

UPDATE: OK, I have now seen part of an interview, on someones iPhone, that has an Escort named Felica sitting by the outside of the Lincoln Memorial talking about how she was sent to two senior staffers to make them happy for a lobbyist. Juicy stuff. It was raw footage.

But, Washington before you freak out about JJ, do you not realize there are 500 JJ's at Google for the Left and Heritage for the Right? It is a race to disclose now. If JJ was interviewing Congressional prostitutes on top of his regular whistle-blowing.. oh BOY!!! The race to cover-up is lost. Who would have thought that women who sell their bodies for cash would rat out Senators and lobbyists who sell out Americans for Cash! Shocking!

So let's see, there are 300 Million American's and about 65 people in Congress who decide what those American's will or will not get and their decisions are guided by how good the pussy is that the lobbyist sends over and how much cash that lobbyist puts in their PAC. Well that seems, fair, right?

It gets better now: CNN and a few other outlets have passed the word on the street that they will pay the big bucks for any Washington Escort who comes forward to do an interview on camera (with obligatory blurred silhouette of course) about any TARP or DOE funding decider they provided special services for that was paid for by a third party. White House and GOP officials on DC escort list

DC Escort list

The scandal of Tobias and the DC madam will expand to more GOP public officials. I read about this political rumor before it went main stream and thought "oh boy, here we go again." So many scandals in Washington these days, that its impossible to keep up. Iraq is a mess, it is in dire need of our politician's attention, but there is no way they can do their job properly with all of the distractions. Read more about Deborah Jean Palfrey and the D.C. madam escort scandal

A nation divided

Even if they wanted to do their jobs, the partisan-only trends, e.g. "veto" anything that doesn't agree with my politics, stubborn Washington officials that refuse to compromise on anything that might evidence a hint of weakness or submission. How can anyone do their job with the the Katrina fiasco, Halliburton scandal, high profile D.C. prostitution ring charges, Alberto Gonzales corruption and potentially illegal U.S. attorney firings, allegations of Karl Rove's involvement in Valerie Plame's CIA leak scandal and the deleted emails "accident" that is hanging a dark cloud over the White House! I've mentioned the larger scandals that have recently been under the microscope, but there is much more. There are so many scandals, in fact, that the overall effect of the numerous scandals has been desensitizing to the American public and it makes such government activity seem less scandalous than it is!

White House, President, Washington officials, is there a solution?

If you take any of the above-listed allegations on their own merits, and scrutinize the role of the White House, President, Washington public officials, and other high profile Americans, you might have enough evidence to bring down the country and possibly push it into an economic recession. What is the answer to America's woes? Its not as simple as impeaching the President, Vice President, or incarcerating a handful of D.C. political players. No matter what happens, our country will be hit hard at a time that it can't afford to take many more hits. Its unfortunate, but unless we've forgotten.. there are many troops in Iraq who need our support and help. They are our loved ones, friends, and American citizens and we need to focus on these individuals.

D.C. officials need to put their money where their mouths are at

My plea to D.C. officials, is pretty much this: put up or shut up! Please carry out the prosecution of any high profile politicians or get back to work because there is no time for petty nonsense. Its fine for bloggers halfway across the globe to do it, because the consequences of my work do not trickle down to the American people. Washington representatives, on the other hand have a responsibility to all Americans to do their job and keep politics out decisions that require some semblance of objectivity and that simply isn't happening

U.S. Senator, Boybatter, and Dead Escort Nexus: Expert Witness to Examine New Possibly Exculpatory Forensics in Penn. vs. Cuadra and Kerekes case

Harlow Cuadra will be represented by a public defender whose office has few resources and a very small likelihood of presenting an effective defense in the almost entirely circumstantial case against Cuadra. The others who were involved in this seem to have lost interest or even turned against Harlow, but not so with Damon and myself. We have found startling new information involving a Washington DC escort who was recently found dead - possibly murdered.

This escort spoke in detailed and apparently truthful terms about his best known client, a deeply closeted U.S. Senator with links to the Norfolk, VA naval base. Harlow Cuadra and Joe Kerekes were based in Norfolk and ran both their gay video website Boybatter.com and their escorting enterprise Norfolk Companions from there, so it's very possible - even likely - their or their affiliated escorts' clientele included high Government officials. The escort was found dead under mysterious circumstances last month in Washington, DC.

He was connected with the man primarily oriented in taking over the Boybatter website.

What he left behind "in case something happens to me" may be very good news for Harlow's defense - IF it can be properly vetted by an expert in forensics. Unfortunately such testing won't be possible for Harlow or his family but it MIGHT be possible for us to arrange - with some help. According to the forensic examiner with whom we spoke - who would make a great expert witness for Harlow's defense if his fee can be assured - it will cost about $4,000 to test the evidence in question and write a suitable report. If the results show what we believe they will indicate, Harlow Cuadra's chances for either acquittal or a light sentence will increase by orders of magnitude. Who can help with this? Never mind the penny ante material such as the faux "Chinchilla" jacket on EBay, this is important new information that just might be exculpatory for Harlow. If reasonable assistance is provided, we'll have the testing done and a report prepared for submission into evidence as a key Defense item.

Contact me or Damon directly if you can help. We're notifying Harlow and his P.D. about this.

Anthony Weiner's sins pale beside prostitution of Congress

|By David Horsey

All but a few macho holdouts among the let-men-be-men faction agree that Anthony Weiner is not worthy of becoming mayor of America's biggest city, but there is a perennial threat to our democracy that is far larger than the turgid tweets of the former congressman from New York. That threat is the ongoing whoredom of members of Congress who remain in office.

Senator: Prostitution scandal wider than believed

By ALICIA A. CALDWELL and LAURIE KELLMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Several small groups of Secret Service employees separately visited clubs, bars and brothels in Colombia prior to a visit by President Barack Obama last month and engaged in reckless, "morally repugnant" behavior, Sen. Susan Collins says.

She says the employees' actions during the stunning prostitution scandal could have provided a foreign intelligence service, drug cartels or other criminals with opportunities for blackmail or coercion that could have threatened the president's safety.

In remarks prepared for the first congressional hearing on the matter Wednesday, Collins, R-Maine, also challenged early assurances that the scandal in Colombia appeared to be an isolated incident. She noted that two participants were Secret Service supervisors — one with 21 years of service and the other with 22 years — and both were married. Their involvement "surely sends a message to the rank and file that this kind of activity is tolerated on the road," Collins said.

"This was not a one-time event," said Collins, the senior Republican on the Senate Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs Committee. "The circumstances unfortunately suggest an issue of culture."

Connecticut Sen. Joe Lieberman, the committee's chairman, said, "I want to hear what the Secret Service is doing to encourage people to report egregious behavior when they see it."

Wednesday's hearing was expected to expose new details in the scandal, which became public after a dispute over payment between a Secret Service agent and a prostitute at a Cartagena hotel on April 12. The Secret Service was in the coastal resort for a Latin American summit before Obama's arrival. Collins said several small groups of agency employees from two hotels went out separately to clubs, bars and brothels and they "all ended up in similar circumstances."

"Contrary to the conventional story line, this was not simply a single, organized group that went out for a night on the town together," Collins said.

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=o2MOgi0uCPs>

Senators were expected to focus on whether the Secret Service permitted a culture in which such behavior was tolerated. Homeland Security Secretary Janet Napolitano has testified previously that she would be surprised if there were other examples, but senators have been skeptical.

In his own prepared remarks, Secret Service Director Mark Sullivan told senators the behavior in Colombia wasn't representative of the agency's nearly 7,000 employees.

"I can understand how the question could be asked," Sullivan said, calling his employees "among the most dedicated, hardest working, self-sacrificing employees within the federal government."

Sullivan also assured senators that Obama's security was never at risk. The officers implicated in the prostitution scandal could not have inadvertently disclosed sensitive security details because their confidential briefing about Obama's trip had not taken place.

"At the time the misconduct occurred, none of the individuals involved in the misconduct had received any specific protective information, sensitive security documents, firearms, radios or other security-related equipment in their hotel rooms," Sullivan said.

Sullivan has survived professionally so far based on his openness about what happened. Senators were not expected to ask for his resignation, and the acting inspector general for the Homeland Security Department, Charles K. Edwards, gave Sullivan high marks for integrity. Edwards, who estimated that the early stages of his own investigation would be finished before July 2, said the Secret Service "has been completely transparent and cooperative."

"The Secret Service's efforts to date in investigating its own employees should not be discounted," Edwards told senators. "It has done credible job of uncovering the facts and, where appropriate, it has taken swift and decisive action."

The White House on Tuesday reassured its confidence in Sullivan. Obama "has great faith in the Secret Service, believes the director has done an excellent job," White House spokesman Jay Carney said. "The director moved very quickly to have this matter investigated and took action very quickly as a result of that investigation."

A dozen Secret Service officers and supervisors and 12 other U.S. military personnel were implicated. Eight Secret Service employees, including the two supervisors, have lost their jobs. The Secret Service is moving to permanently revoke the security clearance for one other employee, and three others have been cleared of serious wrongdoing.

The Washington Post reported Tuesday that four of the Secret Service employees have decided to fight their dismissals.

Prostitution is legal in Colombia, but Sullivan quickly issued new guidelines that made it clear that agents on assignment overseas are subject to U.S. laws.

Sullivan said he directed Secret Service inspectors to investigate reports of similar misconduct in San Salvador. After 28 interviews with hotel employees and managers, State Department officials and others, "no evidence was found to substantiate the allegations," Sullivan said.

This week the Drug Enforcement Administration said the Justice Department's Office of the Inspector General was investigating possible misconduct by two or more agents in Colombia. Collins revealed that the case involved at least two DEA employees who entertained female masseuses in the Cartagena apartment of one of the DEA agents. The investigation is unrelated to the Secret Service scandal but is based on information provided to the DEA by the Secret Service.

Contractor denies bribing ex-congressman . Lobbyist Wilkes is accused of giving lavish kickbacks to Rep. Duke Cunningham

AP

Denies sex with prostitutes

Wilkes insisted he had never hired prostitutes for himself or the congressman, telling jurors that his nephew, an employee, had hired masseuses on a trip to Hawaii. Wilkes said he had not recognized the two escorts who testified for the government that they had been paid to join the men in the hot tub of their private bungalow at the Hapuna Beach Prince Hotel in August 2003. One of the women said she went upstairs and had sex with a man she identified as Cunningham after he fed her grapes while she sat naked in the tub.

"I never had sex with them," Wilkes said. Neither of the women who testified identified Wilkes in the courtroom.

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=T0o5TYe-Sfk>

Throughout his testimony, Wilkes blamed shady dealings with Cunningham on his nephew, Joel Combs, and his former colleague, Mitch Wade, who pleaded guilty in 2006 to bribing Cunningham. He said he only paid for a $4,000 meal with the congressman in Las Vegas because Wade stuck him with the check after ordering a $3,800 bottle of wine.

Army official bribed with cash, cars, escorts, feds say

By SCOTT MCCABE |

A Northern Virginia businessman has been charged with bribing a U.S. Army official with cash, cars and female escorts in an ongoing investigation into one of the largest kickback schemes in federal contracting history. Two former program managers from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers have already pleaded guilty to taking or agreeing to receive more than $26 million in bribes from various contractors. New charging documents reveal a third unidentified U.S. Army official is under investigation for steering contracts to businesses in exchange for more than $200,000 in under-the-table benefits. Oh Sung Kwon, also known as Thomas Kwon, the founder and chief financial officer of Avenciatech in Annandale, becomes at least the 12th person charged in the long-running investigation. Eleven others have pleaded guilty. Kwon, 46, of Vienna, was charged by information, generally an indication that a plea deal is in the works because an information charge cannot be filed without the defendant's consent. A plea hearing has not been scheduled.

According to charging documents, Kwon established Avenciatech in 2009 after learning of other pay-for-play schemes within the U.S. Army. Kwon traveled to South Korea several times to meet with the third Army official, described in court documents as an assistant project manager for the Defense Communications and Army Transmission Systems. Kwon agreed to make the Army official a secret owner in his company, and the public official agreed to steer more than $3 million in contracts to the company. Kwon wired $40,000 to the public official, paid $30,000 for the public official and seven family members to vacation in the Bahamas, documents said. Kwon also paid for female escort services for the Army official in Seoul, South Korea, New York City and Atlanta. When the public official, who had 22 years on the job, moved back to the United States in 2010, Kwon helped the man obtain financing to buy a home in Fairfax Station. The Army official did not want to make the down payment of $230,000 from his bank account because he'd have to provide copies of his bank statements, which contained large cash deposits that might raise red flags for authorities, documents said. Kwon arranged to have one of his employees pretend to be the public official's cousin and execute a phoney "gift letter" to transfer $230,000 to the settlement company, documents said. Kwon also agreed to finance the purchase of a 2010 Lexus, valued at $69,000, for a family member of the public official, documents said. Kwon paid the Army official $7,000 each month from September 2010 to March 2011, but ended the cash payments once the pair learned that the FBI was investigating another part of the scheme. smccabe@washingtont Examiner.com

Five More Members of Congress Being Probed in Bribery Affair

by John Byrne RawStory

Five other members of Congress are being probed in association with the bribery scandal linked to former California Republican congressman "Duke" Cunningham, according to a little-noticed legal filing discovered Thursday. The 42-page sentencing memo was published online by Seth Hettena, an author who has published a book on Cunningham. It was made by the attorney for Mitchell Wade, the former defense contractor who pleaded guilty to bribing Cunningham in 2006 who has cooperated with the government in their investigation. In addition to the five current or former members of Congress, numerous government employees and several private contractors are also under scrutiny. Of the five Congressmembers, two are formally under investigation and three are being examined for their "receipt of straw contributions" – contributions made to members of Congress in an effort to get facilities opened in their districts. Investigators are also looking at a member of Congress for accepting undisclosed gifts, the crime that sunk Alaska Republican Sen. Ted Stevens this year. According to the filing, the five are being probed for "corruption similar to that of Mr. Cunningham." Cunningham, 64, was sentenced to 8 years in prison in 2006; Wade faces sentencing Dec. 15. His cooperation with prosecutors has resulted in guilty pleas or conviction for seven other individuals, the sentencing memo said, which seeks to have his sentence reduced to a fine and five years' probation. Cunningham expert says Katherine Harris likely among those eyed Though none of the additional congressmembers are named, Hettena believes they are "no doubt" Republican Reps. Virgil Goode and Katherine Harris. Harris became famous during the Florida recount in 2000, was elected to Congress in 2002, and was defeated in 2006. Goode represents Virginia and was narrowly defeated in November. Harris may be the member of Congress who underreported campaign contributions. Wade took Harris to dinner at the posh French Georgetown restaurant Michel Richard Citronelle the year before her electoral defeat which cost $2,800, according to Harris' former political strategist Ed Rollins; members of Congress are supposed to report any gifts larger than $50. Citronelle's fixed priced menu costs $155 alone. With "wine pairings," a meal is $230. "Prosecutors drop tantalizing hints about an even bigger, ongoing investigation," Hettena notes. "Wade was debriefed in 2006 and provided 'moderately useful' background information in another 'large and important corruption investigation' that also has not yet resulted in any charges." An element of particular interest that remains unresolved is who utilized escorts and limousines another convicted contractor provided and who attended private poker games at the Watergate hotel. Brent Wilkes, another contractor who went down in the Cunningham affair, used the services of Shirlington Limousine. "He was a winer and a diner," the company's owner told the Hill in 2007. "He liked to take people to eat. If a young lady gets in the car, or he asks us to pick up a young lady, we don't know who it is. We're drivers." Shirlington sued the Department of Homeland Security after they dropped the firm as a contractor following the revelations.

"Adultfriendfinder.com hacked to source 42 senior Senators, Congress-people and senior agency staff writing emails looking for 'fine sweet no-obligation arrangements' and 'someone to take care of you like in House of Cards. Did you see that film?' 'Would that sort of relationship work for you'... etc." claims Hackers.

Could be a bluff or a put-on but judging by the posting and the known charges against congressional staff, this sounds like it might have some legs.

Prostitutes and Politicians

Whoreable Behavior

That's the title of Ann Coulter's article about New York Governor Eliot Spitzer. By now, everyone should have heard the story – the up and coming Democrat Governor of New York (some said he was Presidential material) wasted tens of thousands of dollars on prostitutes and resigned.

Spitzer's life is ruined. It doesn't matter if he has defenders who will wail, "It's his private life!" It doesn't matter if he fights the charges. It doesn't matter if this was a political prosecution. As Talleyrand said: "It's worse than a crime; it's a blunder."

Eliot Spitzer, Harvard Law graduate and Fifth Avenue denizen, is forevermore: "Client No. 9."

Surprising no one, police wiretaps indicate that the "models" were semi-literate, could not learn to swipe a credit card and seemed invariably to be on drugs. That's what you get for $2,000 an hour in this charming business.

Behold the "victimless" crime of prostitution. Hard to believe these girls would turn to drugs. Having sex with strangers for money, nothing to live for ... just thinking about it makes me want to take drugs.

It's absurd to talk about Spitzer's problem being "hypocrisy" – as if everything would be fine if only he had previously advocated legalized prostitution.

But beyond the basic case itself (similar stores being repeated among Presidents, Congressmen, and Senators), what does this mean for the Christian? What lessons should (must) we learn from Spitzer's downfall?

Sin is Not "Victimless"

The idea sins like drug use or prostitution are "victimless" should be out the window now. Some politicians have even advocated legalizing these activities claiming they're victimless – looking at Spitzer's wife during the press conferences you'd be hard pressed to claim prostitution (even if legal) doesn't hurt anyone.

Those politicians (some of which have been presidential candidates) and groups making such claims close their eyes to reality.

The Bible says these things are wrong. They're not bad because they're sin, they're sin because they're bad. We don't know the religious life of Spitzer, but it doesn't really matter – what he did destroyed his family and his political career. Even if prostitution is legal, we doubt his wife would feel different.

But beyond the political arguments, what does the Bible have to say?

For none of us liveth to himself, and no man dieth to himself. For whether we live, we live unto the Lord; and whether we die, we die unto the Lord: whether we live therefore, or die, we are the Lord's. (Romans 14:7-8 KJV)

Paul says in Romans your actions do affect others – a truth not lost on Spitzer's wife and family. The idea "victimless" sins like drugs and prostitution don't hurt anyone and should thus be legalized not only doesn't make sense, it's unbiblical.

That should be enough to settle the issue for Christians.

Your actions (good or bad) affect everyone around you. That's the Biblical truth, so choose your actions wisely.

The Enemy Wants to Take You Down

Problems like Spitzer's never start the way it ends; it's likely he never thought of this ending. But how did he get there? We see pastors become snared in relationships similar to Spitzer's – shouldn't they know better?

It never starts that way. For a pastor, it begins as simple as a married woman coming in for counseling. He begins to talk to her about her marriage and situation, and soon the woman begins to think "this guy understands me, not like the clod at home", and begins to form a bond with him.

The pastor meanwhile, begins to think "here's a woman who appreciates me", and begins to form a bond with her, outside of the relationship with his wife. One thing leads to another, and you know the rest of the story. Neither set out or believed the ending would come as it did, but "it just happened".

To avoid this problem, men counsel men and women counsel women. "That's narrow and legalistic" some may say. Perhaps. But we've seen pastors caught in this snare, and perhaps some simple precautions might avoid the mess.

Besides basic right and wrong, how many people have you heard say "I'll never go to church again, because Christians are hypocrites – look at what that pastor did". Ask yourself, how many people will spend eternity in Hell because of the actions of a few Christians?

You Become Like the Gods you Worship

One reason this problem comes with politicians, athletes and others is because they're used to always getting their way – they can literally buy anything they want. Solomon tried that approach, and found it all vanity (Ecclesiastes).

But a verse in Psalms becomes particularly insightful for these situations.

The idols of the heathen are silver and gold, the work of men's hands. They have mouths, but they speak not; eyes have they, but they see not; They have ears, but they hear not; neither is there any breath in their mouths. They that make them are like unto them: so is every one that trusteth in them. (Psalm 135:15-18 KJV)

You become like the gods you worship. For those who worship power and the ability to do anything they want, it's not surprising their downfall comes from acting in such a way as to ignore everyone around them. It's all about me, after all.

The SIN Problem

We've all inherited a genetic defect from Adam; a sin nature. Every person (except one) who ever walked this planet has the same sin nature. We all make mistakes, we all need forgiveness. The idea of "rating" sin is man's, not God's. You know, Spitzer's sin is really, really bad, but hey, my sin isn't really that bad, at least I didn't ...

Not so. God doesn't grade on a curve. Sin is sin. Period. In Matthew chapter 5, Jesus says sin is internal – if you're angry with your brother without a cause, in God's eyes that's as guilty as murder. And for all those who say "I'd never do what Spitzer did", Jesus also says to look at a woman with lust has already committed adultery with her in his heart.

God looks at the heart, man looks at outward appearances. Don't think just because nobody knows about it God thinks it's OK. You can hide from everyone else, but God knows.

Conclusion

Many will accuse us of claiming Christians are better than everyone else, and don't make such mistakes. Nothing is further from the truth. Christians are just as susceptible to these errors as anyone, and need to be on guard for entrapments which cause their ruin. And remember, it's still sin even if no one finds out.

We're all sinners, and all make mistakes. As Eliot Spitzer goes, there go I, but for the grace of God. It's not pointing out "look how bad that guy is", rather it's a warning for all of us – be careful or you may end up in a similar situation.

We don't ask for judgment, but mercy and grace. All I can get.

The Daily Caller Accuses a Senator of Hiring Prostitutes

Dashiell Bennett

Tucker Carlson's website The Daily Caller is taking a shot at the October Surprise game, accusing New Jersey Senator Robert Menendez of soliciting prostitutes while on a trip to the Dominican Republic. According to videotaped interviews with two anonymous women published on the website last night, Menendez agreed to pay the women $500 for sex during a visit to the country earlier this year. They identified the Senator from a picture, but said they were only given $100 after being brought to see him at a fancy resort on the island.

So if every Prostitute in Washington actually works for CNN, is that good thing or a bad thing?

New Story Coming- Sex for Solyndra. Titties for Tesla's. F*cking for Fisker's.

Just a heads-up, I am working on an angle to this which shows that the second largest expenditure of money-for-escorts-for-car-cash, after Washington and Virginia was not NY, Chicago or LA, it was Palo Alto, California. Venture Capital guys sent girls, and boys, that they hired from the Bay Area to State and Federal decision makers that helped steer funds to their companies. At least one of them is now working in the office of a Senator and two used to be. I still have many leads and tips to double check and verify but the story is looking solid so far. I have very extensive confirmed fact checking on one car executive who hires quite a conveyer belt of escorts.

Confusion reigns.. is DCHobbyist really the same guy, here is DCHobbyist from one of many older posts where the description of the person, by the person, does not gel with who we think we know Him to be:

2 VotesDCHobbyist: Why Do I Hobby? A Hobbyist PerspectiveOctober 26, 2010 § 1 Comment
Why Do I HobbyMany of you likely know me as DCHobbyist via Twitter. I took up Twitter almost a year ago at first to start following interesting ladies whom I hope to eventually see. (This is how I discovered the lovely Dakota, whom I still hope to have the pleasure of seeing if she ever decides to visit Washington DC). Over time, I discovered that many ladies use Twitter not solely as an advertising vehicle, but also to convey their views, pleasures, and frustrations of being an escort. Not seeing any equivalent perspectives from clients, or so-called "hobbyists", I decided to start tweeting my perspectives. So far, it's been a lot of fun and I am very glad that a number of ladies have appreciated the opinions of a client. Dakota's invitation for hobbyist perspectives in the form of a blog entry gives me the opportunity to explain how I got started in the "hobby" and why I continue. A little about myself: I am a white collar professional in my late 30s with a stable career where I make $125,000 a year. Solidly upper-middle class, but not wealthy. And I'm single. I have dated occasionally, but frankly find that long-term monogamous relationships are not for me. For one, I am a bit of a loner. I would rather retire to a bar and enjoy a good meal with a good book in tow rather than spend lots of time with others. Perhaps it is a consequence of being single for so long, but I have gotten into a particular "groove" and can't imagine now inviting another person into my life. However, I am also a very sexual person. I have engaged in casual relationships before, but find that they often get complicated and I'm not one to tolerate fools very long. So that is how I found myself seeing escorts on a regular basis starting approximately five years ago. For the first two years, I limited myself to sensual body rubs alone, primarily because I was freaked out over STD transmission. As I became more comfortable and began to understand that escorts, in some ways, are safer than civies due to their fanatical use of protection, my inhibitions began to drop. First it was me performing DATY. Then BBBJ. And finally full service. And I absolutely love it
Why do I love escorts so much? It is first and foremost the fantasy aspect of the experience. I was somewhat socially awkward in high school and never dated, even though I lusted after the pretty cheerleaders. College was somewhat better, but I only really bloomed after graduation. Now I am a socially confident gentleman, with a sharp intellect, nice clothes and decent looks. Seeing escorts, though, allows me to go back to those lonely days of high school and college and now feel as if I am making out with the prettiest girl in class ... and doing more!
I love walking into an upscale four star or five star hotel. I love getting into the elevator with others, knowing they are on routine errands while I am about to have the time of my life. I love gently knocking on the door, full of nervous energy, asking myself if the lady is as good as the reviews of her that I have meticulously researched. I love it when the door opens slowly, I step into the room, the door closes, and a knockout beauty walks toward me with a mischievous smile as she welcomes me with a passionate kiss. I love getting to know her as we slowly seduce each other, she putting her hand on my leg when I describe my day, me gently pulling her into an embrace as we move to the main event. I love our conversation after the main event as we discuss our lives. I love as she says goodbye to me with a series of soft, sensuous kisses, with the promise we will see each other the next time she is in town. As you can guess, I am a fan of the GFE experience. No Pom Star Experience for me — I like a woman who hangs on my every word, who loves to sensually kiss me, who treats me as a lover for an hour and not a trick. For this reason, I almost exclusively see independent ladies — I find that agency providers tend to have a more mechanical approach and it is not for me. I also reason that the low odds of LE entrapment are higher with agencies than with indies, if only because agencies are such bigger targets. I see escorts because I unabashedly love women and I love a variety of women. I have seen women of every ethnicity and race. I have seen women as young as their early 20s and women in their late 30s. That hour with an escort makes me feel good about myself, it makes me feel like a sexual dynamo, it makes me feel like the center of a lovely young thing's universe. Is it all an illusion? Of course. I understand that intellectually and never seek to push boundaries. But, for that one hour, I lose myself in the illusion and I enjoy it tremendously. Does it emotionally handicap me vis-a-vis civilian ladies? Perhaps. The civilian ladies I occasionally date simply don't hold a candle to the escorts I see, whether it is looks or sexual performance. There is something truly intoxicating about meeting a woman for the first time and making love to her fifteen minutes later. So this is why I hobby. It is also why I call myself a hobbyist. By that, I mean I am a man who regularly sees escorts. I know the term "hobbyist" is viewed with derision by some escorts. And, yes, there are some hobbyists who view escorts with contempt and their behavior can only be described as misogynistic. I would like to think that I do not fall into that category, although some ladies who have read my tweets have expressed concern that I objectify escorts. If so, that is not my intention at all. I truly am impressed by the ladies I have met while hobbying — an escort is an independent business woman in all the best senses of that word. Any questions — feel free to DM me on Twitter at DCHobbyist. And thanks to Dakota for giving me this medium to tell you a little about why I am a patron of the world's oldest profession — updated for the age of the Internet!

No changes or edits have been made to this submission. "Or is DCHobbyist another one of the investigators working their cover story in order to try to get dirt on Senators from DC Escorts?

@DCHobbyist also appears on sugardaddydiary.com, capitalpunterblog.com, and is somehow involved with @texasugah and @sugarycaribbean or they are somehow related in communications. Still researching but OMG this is complex. The wildest theory I have heard so far is that there are a few hundred fake twitter accounts that are pre-operated as character attack handles in case one wants to damage someone. You just say, oh yes, that person is also this other handle where they have sex with goats. Strange but possible in this day and age. If a single one of the Joseph nasty tweets turn out to be true someone is going to want to hurt his credibility ASAP so his disclosures carry less weight. Carson- LA

So it sounds like every Senator is screwing his interns and paying their tuition's to do it (from our tax money) plus has lobbyists sending them a different girl every night on top of that! Now that we all have HDTV, I have been thinking about how burned out and sunken-eyed all of these Senators actually look in high-definition on the News. It is now clear why they all look so run down. That's a lot of questionable sex for one poor guy to have to handle. We American citizens should step up to the plate and offer to take some of those girls off of their hands to help them out. Can't "serve two masters", indeed; these poor guys can't be expected to serve 4 mistresses a night like they seem to do. Stop beating up on these poor Senators and help them out for gods sakes!-----Apparently the Escorts that Congressional Staff and Agency heads pay for have the word "sugar" in their blog title, website title, Twitter Handle and web names. Do some web searching and check out the hotties. Google search using terms and phrases that include the following: "DC, hobby, hobbyist, sugar, generous, gentleman, beltway, etc." Then for a shocker, search: "DC Escorts" and count how many sex agencies you find within 50 miles of the White House. OMG. If only one girl from each of those agencies rats out a Senator then... you have a few hundred leads. Fun! DC Dave-----You know Jofi Joseph is going to show up any time now as a new senior editor at TMZ, Washington Bureau; BigGovernment.com; Gawker, HuffPost or some other online blog.
