How CISCO Screwed the Pooch: The Built-in Backdoors-of-doom!

The spies paid Cisco to build backdoors into every piece of hardware and software they make...but then the hackers got copies of the keys to all of the backdoors and, on top of that, made a doorbell that rings whenever one of their hacker-target doors is active.

There is probably no server that has not been broken into: EVERY agency, every corporation, every social media site, every one of them. Kids can even buy a $40.00 piece of software that does it or them.

Poor Cisco. Poor public. How do we all work together to fix this?

Let's discuss...
